

Assignment 1

AnnaMaria Gavriel

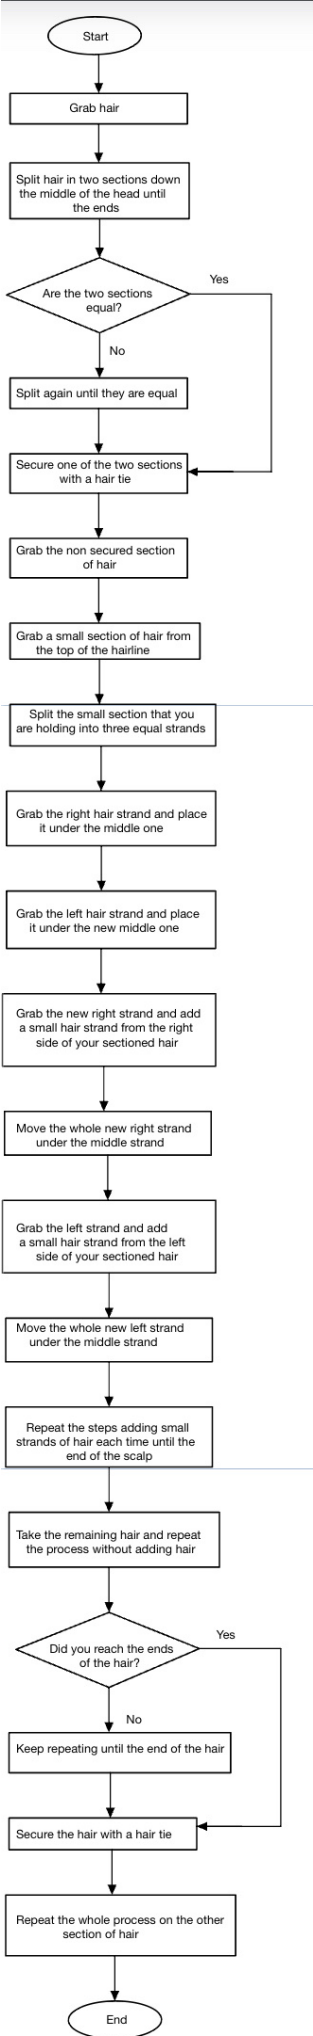

-Pseudocode to Dutch braid your hair

1. Stand in front of a mirror
2. Grab a hair splitting brush and split your hair down the middle starting from the top of your head until the edges
3. Secure the one side of your hair with a hair tie
4. Start at the top of your hairline
5. Grab a small section of your hair and split it in three equal parts
6. Grab the part to your right and place it under the middle hair strands making it the new middle strand
7. Take the left part of the hair and place it under the middle strand making it the new middle strand
8. Take the new right strand and add a small strand of hair from the top right of your sectioned hair and move the whole strand under the middle strand
9. Take the new left strand and add a small strand of hair from the top left of your sectioned hair and move the whole strand under the middle strand
10. Repeat this process each time adding strands of hair that are close to the part of the braid until the end of the scalp
11. Once you reach the end of the scalp repeat the process of the braid without adding anymore hair until the edges of the hair
12. Once your done secure the hair with a hair tie Start
13. Repeat the whole process for the other section of the hair

-Friend's results: the hair did not look smooth, there were some flyaways, there were some knots that made the braids look "chunky"
